BIRTHDAY COMMEMORATION OF ERNEST HEMINGWAY

Activity Name	Birthday commemoration of Ernest Hemingway
Date of Activity	21.07.2023
Mode of Conduct	Offline
Time	9.30 AM – 11.30 AM
Participants (offline)	Students :70 Faculty :05
Description	On July 21st, 2023, our department celebrated the Birthday commemoration of Ernest Hemingway, the renowned American Writer. The program commenced with an introduction to the author through a PowerPoint presentation. We delved into Hemingway's minimalist writing style, characterized by short, declarative sentences and a strong emphasis on concrete details. Our discussion explored how this style contributes to the impact of his storytelling and enhances reader engagement with the narrative. Following the introduction, we displayed several of Hemingway's short stories, including "Cat in the Rain," "Snows of Kilimanjaro," and "Hills like White Elephants," on an interactive board. This interactive approach aimed to simplify the concepts for students and deepen their understanding of Hemingway's works. Our discussion on Ernest Hemingway's short stories provided valuable insights into his writing style, thematic depth, and the broader implications of his works. We highlighted the significance of Hemingway's contributions to literature and the enduring relevance of his themes. The meeting concluded with an encouragement for further exploration of Hemingway's literary contributions and their relevance to our curriculum. In the final session, we welcomed inquiries and offered to provide additional information or clarification regarding Hemingway's work and the topics discussed during the meeting.

Annabel Lee by Edgar Allan Poe | Powerful Life Poetry

It was many and many a year ago,
In a kingdom by the sea,
That a maiden there lived whom you may know
By the name of Annabel Lee;
And this maiden she lived with no other thought
Than to love and be loved by me.
